Six Months More Probe Life Hinted

Senate OKs 60-Day Extension, But Added Time Is Expected

WASHINGTON, March 30—Highly-placed Senate officials said privately today that the Kefauver Crime Committee probably will be continued for another six months after its present 30-day extension.

They said privately that Senate sentiment for a longer extension is being bolstered by the floods of mail reaching senators' desks demanding further investigations of local conditions.

Republicans are talking about asking an extension until next

January. Informed sources said the time probably will be whittled down, but that extension of the life of the committee—in the case of the establishment of a crime commission—is virtually certain.

Chairman Kefauver, (D) Tenn., is regarded as certain to be succeeded by Sen. O'Connor, (D) Md. Kefauver, leaders say, is showing no signs of yielding on his determination to quit the committee after it makes its recommendations for new laws.

President's Moves Hit

GOP Questioning Bases Abroad

WASHINGTON, March 30—Senate Minority Leader Wherry challenged President Truman's authority today to build American air bases abroad or to integrate U. S. naval units with the British navy.

The Nebraska Republican, in a Senate speech, added this to his overall denial that the President has authority to assign American ground troops to a European army without congressional approval.

Wherry favors both strengthening sea power and circling Russia with a "ring" of air bases, but he said Congress should make a "thorough exploration" of all the President has done in that direction.

Wherry said the Department of Defense has not satisfied him that the President has authority to make agreements for establishing the air bases.

He added that Navy lawyers told him the fleet integration fell under the "inherent" power of the commander-in-chief, which Wherry also challenged.

The GOP leaders want the pending troops resolutions sent back to committee for revision into outright legislation.

Majority Leader McFarland, (D) Ariz., said he is confident he has the votes to defeat the recommitment motion by a "substantial margin." The showdown comes Monday when all amendments, motions and the resolutions themselves will be voted upon.

McFarland said he expects to have about 10 Republicans voting against recommitment.

Sen. Taft, (R) Ohio, has attacked President Truman for failing to get congressional approval of his troops program and said that to yield power now would lead to dictatorship in the White House.

MEANWHILE, Frank Costello faces a new contempt citation from the Kefauver group. The New York gambler, now vacationing in Florida, was cited for refusing to tell the committee the size of his fortune.

An earlier citation, based on Costello's "walkout" from a New York hearing was dropped because Costello eventually returned for further questioning. Conviction of contempt of Congress carries possible penalties of a year in jail, $1,000 fine, or both.

One of the committee's most prominent witnesses, Ambassador to Mexico William O'Dwyer, got a clean bill of health from President Truman, who told his news conference emphatically that he would not remove the former New York mayor from his present post.

O'Dwyer's testimony differed from that of John Crane, a fireman's union official, over political campaign contributions. Both men were under oath.

With only six senators on the floor, the Senate yesterday adopted unanimously a resolution extending the life of the committee until May 1 to give it time in which to write its report and submit recommendations for new laws.

Sen. Hunt, (D) Wyo., the only crime committee member present when the extension was granted, reported that in the turbulent 10 months, the committee heard 764 witnesses in 15

Doctor Sets Own Leg Perfectly

LAUREL, Miss., March 30—X-rays and other doctors agreed today that an elderly Waynesboro, Miss., physician did a "perfect" job of resetting his own shattered leg.

Dr. Sam McIlwain, who is over 60, is resting comfortably in Laurel General hospital. The physician fell in his Waynesboro home. When he regained consciousness, he reset the shattered tibia bone of his right leg, and forced his dislocated ankle into place before he was moved to the hospital.

GI PARATROOPERS, Cpl. Tom Flynn, of Brooklyn, N. Y., and Pfc. John Charters, of Lowell, Mass., turn to the Orient's oldest form of transportation after dropping behind Red Korean lines in war's most modern fashion. The "liberated" ox is loaded with ammunition as the Americans push northward toward the "38th."

DEFENSE LINES TIGHTEN

Quarter-Million-Man Red Army Blasted Hard

TOKYO, March 31—(Saturday)—American big guns hurled a series of artillery barrages against vanguards of a quarter-million man Chinese army on Korea's west and central fronts Friday, stalling one counter-attack and blasting reinforced Red positions.

Chinese Reds bolstered their defense lines five to six miles below Parallel 38 above the Allied base of Chunchon along the central front.

Allied armored patrols rapped into enemy entrenchments which only last week were harassing outposts. Reverting to the famed "Operation Killer" tactics, the United Nations tanks withdrew on first contact with the Red defense line. Then UN commanders called in the big guns for a merciless blasting of forward elements of some 80,000 Chinese concentrated in a 150-square-mile triangle north of Chunchon.

An estimated 10,000 Chinese were blocking the road between Chunchon and Hwachon, eight miles north of the parallel.

FARTHER WEST American artillery fire slammed at almost point-blank range into a mountain trail to stop an attempted Red counterattack in its tracks. The big guns continued belching flame and steel through the night and into early hours of the morning at the Reds who were showing a new determination to hold ground after several weeks of withdrawal.

In the west sector Friday night, the southward enemy thrust above Uijongbu was broken up by sundown after daylight fighting, including grenade duels.

AMERICAN ARTILLERY fire caught Chinese troops of "unknown numbers" moving down mountain trails for a counter-attack. A full-fledged Red onslaught had not yet developed by 8 p. m.

Earlier in the day, a spokesman for an American division on the west front said a U. S. Army patrol penetrated four miles north of the 38th Parallel, but stated later he was unable to confirm that the Yank spearhead had crossed into North Korea.

Increasing Red aggressiveness a few miles below Parallel 38 in the west and central sectors coincided with the Korean war's strongest display of enemy air power as 38 Russian-type MIG-15 jets tangled with nearly as many American jet fighters.

TWO ALL-JET dogfights broke out over Northeast Korea's Sinuiju area Friday as 38 B-29 Superforts attacked Yalu river bridges in what was officially termed "the most concentrated air bombardment of this bridge system." At least one MIG was downed and two others damaged.

American intelligence officers said the Chinese invaders were reported to have massed 200,000

New GI Fable About Turtles Heard In Korea

TOKYO, March 30—A GI fable with a touch of Mark Twain in it is helping the Americans of two frontline divisions to laugh off their troubles.

The fable is about the rotation system, which is a sorepoint with the combat veterans because it does not work as fast as they would like.

Doug Dubois, a lanky, raw-boned sergeant from Fresno, Calif., fashioned the fable as a private gag.

But Doug, who works for Pacific Stars and Stripes as a frontline reporter, did not realize what a good gag he had whipped up.

And before he knew what was happening everybody in the American 25th and 3rd Divisions was repeating his story and, by repetition, making it something of a minor classic in this war.

Doug's fable is that the rotation system is going slowly because an army of turtles is being organized to replace the men who are veterans of the Korean fighting.

The turtles are all combat veterans because "they have been under heavy shelling all their lives and you might call them battle hardened."

The turtle army is supported, of course, by an air force of turtle doves.

A French battalion of tortoises lends color to the outfit. Another battalion of sea-going turtles handles the amphibious chores, such as river crossings. Hard-shelled Texas terrapins have ferocious-looking turtles painted on their backs to frighten the enemy.

RESPONSIBILITY RESTS AT HOME

It's Up To Public To Crush Any Crime - Politics Tieups

WASHINGTON, March 30—It's up to the American people to smash gambling and crime and their venal political allies.

That will be a dominant theme of the Kefauver committee's final report on the shocking nationwide situation it has exposed in the last ten months.

Senator Estes Kefauver (D-Tenn.), the tall, soft-spoken committee chairman, has emphasized that point again and again.

The Senate committee has dramatized and focussed national attention on the crime syndicates' nefarious operations, but the committee is not and cannot be a cure-all.

The primary responsibility, the committee insists, rests with the people themselves, through local and state enforcement agencies.

The committee, strictly a fact-finding body, has brought public opinion to the boiling point and demands for action already are being heard throughout the nation.

The Senate committee warns, however, that the public must continue its vigilance if the threat of the crime bosses is to be removed.

The big problem, of course, is how the job can be done. The Senate committee has marshaled the evidence; now it's up to the people to act.

Congress can help, says the committee, but cannot do the entire job.

As an aid to better law enforcement, the Senate committee's final report will contain certain concrete recommendations.

It will undoubtedly urge federal legislation restricting the use of transmission facilities for gambling purposes.

Such a law would be aimed at the racing wire services controlled by the Capone gangsters in Chicago, enabling them to dominate the lucrative bookmaking racket.

The Senate investigators also are expected to urge the creation of some standing federal commission or committee, with subpoena powers, to investigate interstate crime in cooperation with local and state enforcement agencies and citizen crime commissions.

Other probable recommendations are:

A tightening of income tax laws to prevent known gangsters and racketeers from continuing "to get away with murder" on their tax returns.

Expansion of the federal narcotics bureau to combat the increase in the drug traffic, which is making addicts of "teen agers in alarming proportions.

Tightening of the immigration laws to facilitate the deportation of known gangsters of foreign birth who brazenly flaunt the law.

Vigorous grand jury action on local levels. It has been suggested that the states might set up grand juries each year empowered to investigate crime conditions.

The creation of more crime commissions and other citizen committees to investigate, act as "watchdogs" and spur law enforcement agencies.

The committee probably will offer pointed comment on the participation of lawyers in the "business" of their criminal clients, thus in effect making them a part of the criminal mobs.

Possible action by the bar associations will be recommended. Millions of plain Americans have been shocked and angered as they watched well-tailored, well-heeled mobsters, accompanied by their lawyer mouthpieces, refuse to answer the Senate committee's questions by standing on their "constitutional rights."

Aroused to fighting pitch, these Americans now are apparently ready to join the wrathful Senator Charles W. Tobey (R-N.H.), in crying:

"Hold Enough", and acting to jail the mobsters and put them out of business.

46 Resolutions Facing Parley

WASHINGTON, March 30—Foreign ministers of the 21 American republics debated today the knotty problem of mobilizing the Western Hemisphere to meet Communist aggression without initiating disastrous inflation.

The statesmen wrestled with no less than 46 resolutions designed to increase production, control prices and avoid inflation.

U. S. Assistant Secretary of State Willard L. Thorp circulated a detailed statement among the Latin American delegations assuring them the U. S. was not proposing a "full-scale economic mobilization necessary for the actual carrying on of war."

Thorp admitted that "if the Kremlin persists in a course of aggression," this may be forced upon the hemisphere eventually. He pleaded for a series of controls and production agreements immediately.

"We in the free world have greater economic capacity than we had before the last war," Thorp said.

The U. S. spokesman readily conceded that "one of the greatest economic dangers we face is the threat of inflation." He argued that by the cooperation and concerted action of the 21 republics this danger can be avoided.

The issue of a resolution declaring the American states ready to support the United Nations with armed forces appeared fairly well resolved, 18 to 3 in favor. Argentina, Mexico and Guatemala voiced the opposition.

Enemy Loses 761,000 Men

WASHINGTON, March 30—The Army estimated today that the Chinese Communists have suffered 293,000 casualties since they entered the Korean war last November.

The estimate listed 260,000 battle casualties, 31,000 non-battle casualties and 2,300 Chinese prisoners of war. There was no breakdown between killed and wounded. Total enemy casualties since the start of the war were estimated 761,000. This includes 263,000 North Korean battle casualties, 45,000 non-battle casualties among the enemy Koreans, and 133,000 North Korean prisoners of war.

Cline Says Grand Jury To Get Data

Law Officials May Get Summons

Pickaway County Prosecuting Attorney Guy Cline Friday promised that a full-fledged investigation of all phases of gambling would be conducted by next month's grand jury.

The possibility of law enforcement officials of both Circleville and Pickaway County being called to give evidence before the grand jury was hinted.

Without specifically naming any officer, Cline pointed out that none is exempt from appearance before the jury in an investigation of gambling.

Pickaway County Sheriff Charles Radcliff insisted Friday that "no slot machines exist in Pickaway County."

He objected heatedly to a statement made by Circleville Police Chief William McCrady who said:

"THEY HAVE slot machines in the county, all right, but they call them 'consoles' and pay across the counter."

To which Sheriff Radcliff replied Friday:

"If Chief McCrady has evidence of that sort, he should be subpoenaed to present it to the grand jury. Because if there is anything like that going on in the county, I know nothing about it."

Sheriff Radcliff, in answer to McCrady's statement about "consoles," said:

"I visited two places in the county Thursday where machines are used. I asked in both places whether there was any payoff and they told me there definitely was not."

Incidentally, Sheriff Radcliff and Prosecutor Cline apparently do not see eye-to-eye on whether bingo should be classed as gambling. The sheriff has repeatedly said he has "no objections to bingo."

The promised grand jury investigation is an offshoot of a directive issued by Cline to city and county authorities Wednesday in which he out-

Admiral Halsey, Stettinius Tied To Ships Deal

WASHINGTON, March 30—A Senate committee today expected to get records showing that Admiral William (Bull) Halsey and the late Edward R. Stettinius, former secretary of state, shared in huge profits obtained in a surplus ships deal.

Sen. Johnson, (D) Colo., chairman of the Senate Commerce Committee, said that official records of the old Maritime Commission probably will be turned over to his group yet today.

The records contain a list of stockholders in the surplus ships company organized by ex-Sec. Joseph E. Casey (D) Mass., which netted a $2.7 million profit and which figured in the Fulbright committee's probe of "influence" in the Reconstruction Finance Corp.

Government sources said the list of 1947 stockholders in Casey's Overseas Tanker Corp. includes such notables as Halsey, World War II hero in the Pacific; Stettinius, and a former assistant secretary of state, Julius C. Holmes, now U. S. minister to London.

Halsey retired from the Navy before Casey organized the ship firm and Stettinius, who died Oct. 31, 1949, was no longer secretary of state at the time of the tanker transaction, nor was Holmes then a government official.

Casey refused Wednesday to give the names of the stockholders and other details to the Fulbright committee investigating "favoritism" in the RFC. He contended that the ships deal did not come within the Fulbright's group jurisdiction.

REDS WILL LOSE ANY WAR AFTER 1951

Defense Chiefs Say Nation Now In Its Greatest Peril

WASHINGTON, March 30—The nation's top defense mobilizers put a three-year timetable on the rearmament program today and warned Russia her chances of success for attack narrow daily.

Defense Chief Charles E. Wilson along with his top assistants, Eric Johnston and Manly Fleischmann, told a congressional subcommittee studying their appropriations request they want to spend $50 billion a year for three years for guns and other war materials.

At the end of that time, Wilson said, the U. S. will be in a position to fight an all-out war.

Fleischmann, defense production administrator, frankly warned that Russia must start a war this year if she hopes to win.

He said the U. S. will be "ready" in one more year. Fleischmann added that "two more years Russia will not stand a chance."

The production official said the country is in its greatest peril right now.

Johnston, head of economic stabilization, advised there is less danger of Russia attacking "every day that goes by" because this nation and Western European nations are growing stronger.

Appropriations Committee Chairman Cannon, (D) Mo., asked Wilson if he were not gambling that Russia would not attack this year.

Wilson replied: "Not to any great extent. I don't believe that by conversion beyond what we are doing and without new sources of material it would make very much difference in our strength at the end of this one-year period."

Wilson said the nation would have a $325 billion economy next year. Regular non-military production will hit $275 billion, he added. Other highlights of the testimony:

Wilson revealed Congress will be asked to "make some changes" in the price of farm products. He did not say what kind of a change he had in mind but indicated the parity rule would not be touched.

Johnston said Labor and Management in the government have ironed out nearly all of their difficulties about Labor's place in the production picture.

Johnston said America did not get tough enough soon enough with Russia. He said the only thing Russian leaders understand is force and America had

"too little" of this. He said we have been "too conciliatory" and "willing to compromise" in the immediate postwar period.

Meanwhile, Gen. Hoyt Vandenberg, Airforce chief of staff, thinks seven out of ten enemy planes will reach their American targets in the event of all-out war.

American military leaders believe the planes would attack across the Polar regions, hit the northwest first and then travel across the country to northeastern United States.

The possibility of bacteriological as well as atomic attack is being taken into consideration.

These disclosures were made today with the release by the House Appropriations Committee of testimony given in connection with Civilian Defense planning.

Chairman Cannon, (D) Mo., revealed that Vandenberg had testified that in the event of all-out war "in spite of everything we could do, at least 70 percent of the hostile planes would come through."

Cannon said this meant that enemy planes "would hit all of our large centers of population, production and strategic importance."

lawed the operation of bingo games.

Cline added that he had "never been in favor of slot machines," but thought a action against them should come through the grand jury.

Sheriff Radcliff Friday included punchboards in the ban. "And that's all over," he declared, "city and county both. Punchboards are worse than bingo any day, because kids play the things. Kids will lay down their pennies on punchboards, where they won't on bingo games."

THE SHERIFF repeated an earlier statement that while he knew of no slot machines in the "rural territory of Pickaway County," he had "been told that some exist in some of the clubs in Circleville."

In a prepared statement, Cline declared Friday:

"The question of gambling and law enforcement has been the subject of considerable comment in recent weeks, both in the nation and locally here in Pickaway County."

"I have no apologies to make for any statements accredited to me or my office pertaining to law enforcement."

"Much comment has been offered regarding the ill effects of different forms of gambling. It is my personal belief that we cannot legislate morals nor can we make people moral by efforts toward law enforcement."

"I believe the great concern of the nation and our local people is commercialized gambling and that Pickaway County has a very limited amount of such activity."

"However, it is not within the discretion of law enforcement officers to select one person for prosecution and permit another to go without being brought to justice."

"IT IS MY intention to confer with all law enforcement officials within the next 10 days at a meeting of the Pickaway County Law Enforcement Officers Association and to present any evidence of gambling to the grand jury."

"This, however, does not refer to insignificant cases where the proceeds are not a means of livelihood of any individual."

Cline explained that he did not intend to push cases against forms of gambling sometimes found in small social gatherings.

"It's gambling to match pennies for Cokes," he said, "and a form of gambling frequently goes on in small bridge games. That is certainly not commercialized gambling, and no one is making a living at it. Cases of that sort probably would be thrown out by the grand jury."

Meanwhile, in Bellefontaine, a former Logan County deputy sheriff, now an Airforce sergeant, has testified that he received $100 a month to protect a Bellefontaine man's slot machines.

Dalton G. McAdams, who resigned last June 1 as a Logan County deputy, made his statement at a deposition hearing Thursday because he won't be able to attend the April 19 bribery trial of Louis W. Miller, the man accused of being the slot operator.

The Airforce man said Former Sheriff E. K. Sargent gave him $50 a month and Miller appropriated the same amount to protect Miller's slots. He testified that Miller and Sargent had an agreement to "discourage" slot competitors.

McAdams was not indicted because he turned state's evidence and bribery indictments were returned against Sargent and Miller. The indictments against Sargent were nolle when he resigned Nov. 1.

Lottery operators have closed shop in Akron as Mayor Charles E. Slusser put into effect three new ordinances providing fines up to $2,000 and jail terms of a year for any violator.

This is the first time in Akron's history that a slot has been put to the multimillion dollar lottery operations.

Carl Radcliff Ending Duties As Deputy Sheriff

Saturday will mark the temporary end of civilian law enforcement duties for a Pickaway County deputy sheriff.

He is Carl K. Radcliff, 44, of 228 East Franklin street, who resigned his deputy job earlier this month effective April 1.

Radcliff, a grandfather twice over, has been recalled to active duty with the U. S. Navy. He is to report for duty April 11 in Great Lakes Naval Base.

The deputy began police work in Circleville more than 18 years ago. He served 10 years with the city police department and for the last five years has been a deputy in the sheriff's office.

Radcliff served three years during World War II with the Navy's construction battalion in the Pacific theatre of operations. He also served as a guard in a Columbus airplane plant.

The deputy has four children, two boys and two girls, and two grandchildren. One of his sons is with the U. S. Army in Alaska while the other is serving with the Air National Guard in Columbus.

Radcliff and Clark (Screwy) Martin, who also has been recalled to duty in the Navy, plan to leave for Great Lakes April 11.

McCrady was arrested late Wednesday on Route 23 north of Circleville by State Highway Patrolman.

The Rockbridge man later was held for grand jury action on $500 bond, although grand jury action was bypassed with a bill of information presented in common pleas court by Prosecutor Guy Cline.

Judge William D. Radcliff fined McCrady $10 and costs and sentenced him to 10 days in jail in addition to the license suspension. The jail sentence was suspended later in favor of placing the man on probation.

The second dogfight occurred when three American F-80 Shooting Star jets fought off eight MIGs. FEAF headquarters said there were "no reports of damage to either side" in this engagement.

U.S.-Canada Said Partners

Agriculture officials estimate that person for person each Canadian citizen buys 10 times as much food and feed from the U. S. than Americans buy from Canada.

They say that the U. S. and Canada exchange more products across their 3,000 mile border than any other two countries in the world.

The U. S. and Canada, they point out, are actually partners in agricultural trade and not competitors. Each supplies the others needs.

Survivors include a daughter, Mrs. Rondeau Counts of near Chillicothe; four sisters, Mrs. Stella Squires of Moss Bluff, Fla., Mrs. Elizabeth Ater and Miss Minnie Maag of Canton and Mrs. Lena Maddux of Crooks Station.

Survivors include a daughter, Mrs. Rondeau Counts of near Chillicothe; four sisters, Mrs. Stella Squires of Moss Bluff, Fla., Mrs. Elizabeth Ater and Miss Minnie Maag of Canton and Mrs. Lena Maddux of Crooks Station.

Also surviving are three brothers, A. L. Maag of Hallsville and E. L. Maag and Dennis Maag of Columbus and two grandchildren.

Services will be held at 2 p. m. Sunday in Hill Funeral Home, Kingston, with the Rev. Lewis Mathews of Logan Evangelical United Brethren church officiating.

Burial will be in Hallsville cemetery. Friends may call in the funeral home after 9 a. m. Saturday.

Varied Program To Be Given By Men's Glee Club

A varied program will be presented by the men's glee club of Wooster college when it appears here at 8 p. m. Saturday under the auspices of Westminster Fellowship of Circleville Presbyterian church.

The concert is open to the public. Seven groups of songs, ranging from English and American folk tunes on through the magnificent chorus and finale of Wagner's "Die Meistersinger," will be included in the concert.

The current Broadway production of "Peter Pan" will provide one of the numbers on the glee club program. This will be Leonard Bernstein's pirate song from the play.

One group on the program will be of songs by modern composers, such as Bernstein's pirate song, Gail Kubik's "Oliver DeLancey" and Henry Cowell's "Evensong at Brookside." Kubik was winner of the 1950 Prix de Rome, coveted prize for musical composition.

For a college whose football team is known as the Wooster Scots, whose marching band wears kilts, it is appropriate that the glee club program will include three Scottish songs by Beethoven and a medley of familiar Scottish songs by a double quartet.

A group of 19 Pickaway County 4-H Club boys left Thursday for a four-day tour of Chicago.

CONTEMPT citations are pending, either voted by the Senate or still in the committee, against 32 witnesses. Seven of the 25, whom the Senate voted arrest warrants, still are missing.

At its meeting yesterday, the Kefauver committee:

1. Voted a new contempt citation against Costello — based on his refusal to tell the size of his fortune.

2. Deferred action on Morris Kleinman and Louis Rothkopf, the Cleveland and Northern Kentucky witnesses who said television newsreels and radio in the hearing room violated their constitutional rights.

3. Postponed action on Jake (Greasy Thumb) Guzik, reputed business manager of the Capone syndicate, reportedly to study possibility of a perjury action as well as a contempt citation against him. The committee learned that while he said he had not consulted counsel, he was reported to have come to the capital with a Chicago lawyer.

4. Recommended contempt citations against John Croft, alleged partner in Northern Kentucky gambling houses, and William G. (Butsy) O'Brien, Florida racing wire distributor. They refused to answer committee questions.

GOD'S WONDERFUL CREATION

HOW MANIFOLD ARE THE LORD'S WORKS!

Scripture—Genesis 1-2; Psalm 104; John 1:1-3.

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL

THIS LESSON gives us the dramatic and dignified Bible story of the creation of our beautiful world. To be truly religious, it seems to this writer that children should be taught very early to appreciate what a truly wonderful world it is in which we live. An illustration taken from life illustrates the point. It is that of a 3-year-old child who, while out walking, called his mother's attention to a gorgeous sunset.

Those who live "close to nature," enjoying all its beauties, feel more keenly God's great goodness. While we deplore the miseries men bring on themselves and their brothers and sisters, and the destruction of earth's beauties by thoughtless men, we still gain a greater faith in God and His power to eventually, in His own time, bring brotherhood, happiness and peace to all mankind.

"In the beginning," we read, "God created the heaven and the earth."

"And the earth was without form, and void; and darkness was

The waters were peopled with life and the fowls of the air were created—"whales, and every living creature that moveth, which the waters brought forth abundantly, after their kind, and every winged fowl after his kind; and God saw that it was good."

"And the evening and the morning were the fifth day."

The beasts of the earth came next, cattle, and every creeping thing. Last, God made man "in His own image, in the image of God created He him; male and female created He them."

"And God blessed them, and said unto them, Be fruitful, and multiply, and replenish the earth, and subdue it: and have dominion over the fish of the seas, and over the fowl of the air, and over every living thing that moveth upon the earth."

Thus ended the sixth day, and on the seventh God rested from the making of man and woman and then tells us of the beautiful garden in which God put this man upon the face of the deep. And the spirit of God moved upon the face of the waters."

Then God created light, and saw that it was good, and divided the light from the darkness. The light He called day, and the darkness night. That was the work of the first day.

On the second day the firmament was made and the waters under the firmament were divided from those above, and "God called the firmament Heaven."

The third day saw the gathering of the waters together and named seas, and the earth appeared and was given its name.

"And God said, Let the earth bring forth grass, the herb yielding seed, and the fruit tree yielding fruit after its kind, whose seed is in itself, upon the earth; and it was so."

On the fourth day "God made two great lights; the greater light to rule the day, and the lesser light to rule the night; He made the stars also."

"And God set them in the firmament of the heaven to give light upon the earth."

and woman, warning them, however, that there was one tree the fruit of which they must not eat. It was the tree of the "knowledge of good and evil." If they ate of its fruit, they would surely die, God told them.

In these two chapters the man is named Adam, but we do not learn the woman's name until the third chapter.

There will hardly be time enough in this class to read the 104th psalm, but the teacher should read parts of it aloud, or have children old enough to read it, read, each one in turn. Its poetry is beautiful, and majestic, and it emphasizes the wonders of the creation and the psalmist's thankfulness for them, and especially for the goodness of the Maker of all things thereon.

"O Lord, how manifold are Thy works! In wisdom hast Thou made them all: the earth is full of Thy riches."

"I will sing unto the Lord as long as I live: I will sing praise to my God while I have my being. "My meditation of Him shall be sweet: I will be glad in the Lord."

Anti-Pollution Bill Ready For Senate Vote

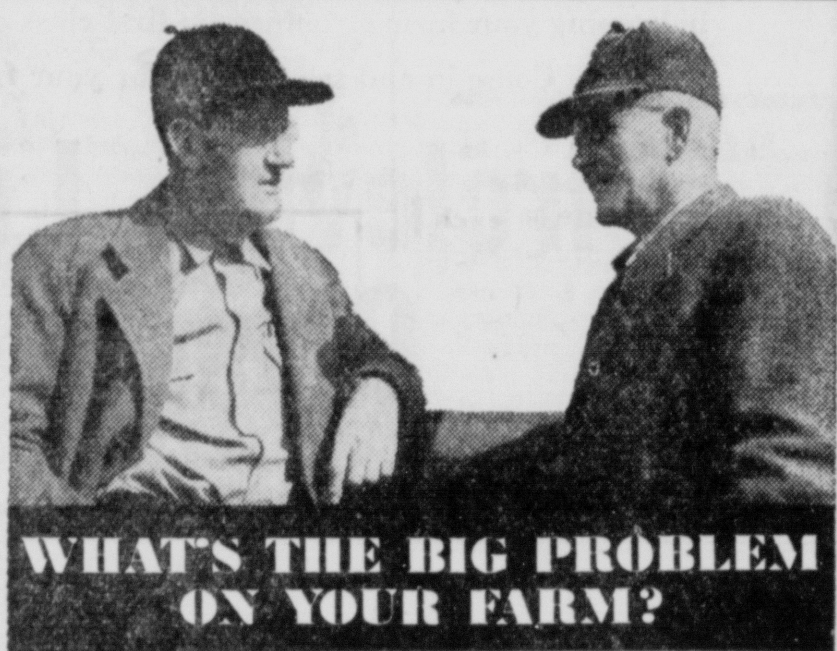

COLUMBUS, March 30 — An anti-pollution bill providing a fine of up to $1,000 a day for contaminating Ohio streams was ready for a senate vote today.

By an eight to one vote, with Sen. Joseph Nutt (R-Cleveland) casting the opposing ballot, the measure was recommended for passage last night by the senate agriculture committee.

The measure, by Sen. William Deddens (R-Cincinnati), defines pollution and declares it to be a legal nuisance to dump any kind of polluting waste, be it industrial or city sewage or any other type, punishable by a $500 fine for the first offense, a $1,000 fine for each succeeding offense, and each day to be considered a separate violation.

However, to prevent immediate hardship on industrial firms or cities now dumping into streams, and to allow them time to comply with the new law, permits to bypass the measure may be granted temporarily by a special state board, to be good until their situations can be remedied.

Electricity Pays High On Farm

Survey Taken On Ohio Unit

WARREN, March 30 — How much work does electricity really save on a farm?

Joseph Motz and son Bob of nearby West Farmington, can tell you about as close as anyone.

Their place was picked by Westinghouse Electric Corp., and Ohio Edison for a test to answer questions about effect of electricity on farm operations.

The Motz's clipped 1,173 working hours from operations in 1949 compared with 1944, the year the farm was serviced. Size of the farm was boosted 87 percent in the six years and the Motz dairy herd was increased 73 percent.

When chores were electrically mechanized big savings were made in labor needed for the Motz dairy enterprise.

1—An electric pumping system and drinking cups shaved 175 hours off chores in the first five winter months of the test. Daily milk from 11 cows also increased nearly three percent.

2—An electric-powered emery wheel cut 18 hours from sickle sharpening one season. The same motor operates other equipment.

3—AN ELECTRIC fence controller permitted a late-Summer pasture shift which boosted milk and earned $72.73 extra in 30 days.

4—An electrically operated elevator saves time and labor in storing baled hay and grain.

5—Lights around farmstead and in buildings facilitate chores.

6—A new dairy barn and new equipment reduced milking time 110 minutes daily. Milk is delivered thru plastic tubes from cows to cans in the milk room.

As power consumption went up and working hours went down, farm earnings increased. For 1950, the hourly return for labor was $1.17. This, adjusted to 1944 costs and prices makes the comparable wage $1, or 51 percent over 1944.

INDUSTRY'S WORTH DETAILED

Growth, History Of Ohio's Highways Cited In Report

Ohio's road and street network represents 3.3 percent of the national road mileage, and carried 5.5 percent of the national travel, according to the Ohio Program Commission and the Highway Study Committee.

A report prepared for the two groups shows that highway transportation in Ohio is almost a $2 billion-a-year business, accounting for about one-sixth of total income.

"One out of every six employed persons has a job connected with motor transportation," the report says.

It points out that the number of motor vehicles for each 100 persons has increased from .7 percent in 1910 to 32.5 at present.

"In 1925, the average Ohio vehicle was driven 5,500 miles per year," the report says. "In 1948, the average was 9,200 miles, and is expected to be 9,800 miles by 1970. Over three million vehicle registrations are in prospect for 1970, and a travel increase of 35 percent over 1948."

"TRAVEL distribution by systems in 1948 averaged 1,300 vehicles daily on rural state highways, 190 vehicles on county roads and 65 vehicles on township roads. Average traffic volume for city streets is 2,000 vehicles daily.

"No axle loads in excess of 18,000 pounds were recorded in 1925. By 1948, of every 1,000 trucks 139 had axle loads above 18,000 pounds."

The report delves into the history of road development in Ohio:

"When Ohio was admitted into the Union in 1803, there were but 1,030 miles of crooked wagon trails throughout the length and breadth of the state."

"A provision of the state's first general road act decreed that all timber and brush shall be cut and cleared off at least 20 feet wide, leaving tree stumps not more than one foot in height."

"Bridges, according to a contemporary writer, were 'nothing more than two long trees thrown over the stream. . . with split or round pieces of timber laid across these side by side.'"

"THE INFLUENCE of early road patterns on present problems dates back to the time when the Ohio country was first being settled."

"The first roads were built in the southern half of the state and, for the most part, they followed the winding buffalo and Indian trails or even the more circuitous property lines of the old Virginia Military District."

"In Northern Ohio, road practices went to the other extreme, adhering in most instances to the straight section and township lines, regardless of terrain features which would have made slight deviations more practicable."

"To a considerable extent, Ohio's rural road network still follows the patterns established by these pioneer roads and trails, and the task of converting the state's major thoroughfares to the demands of modern highway transportation is yet to be completed."

"The first legislative authorization to build roads in Ohio was contained in a territorial act of 1792. It required all able-bodied males 16 years of age or more to perform a minimum of 10 days of road work annually. New roads were built upon petition by 12 or more citizens to the county court of quarter-sessions and under the direction of road supervisors appointed by the court justices."

"Early efforts to provide roads at public expense were apparently not sufficient to meet the demands of the times, with the result that private industry began to construct and operate toll roads."

"The first turnpike company in Ohio was incorporated in 1809. Many others were formed shortly afterward and were active during the following 60 years. Subsequent legislative acts permitted state and local aid to the turnpikes and eventually they were all purchased for use as public roads."

Fearless Fagan Out Of Job; Big City Law Cited

COLUMBUS, March 30—Another sad encounter with fate was unfolded today in the life and times of Fearless Fagan, an orphaned lion.

The three-year-old lion whose master, Floyd Humeston, was drafted, lost his meal ticket—gain.

Fearless and his temporary master, Earl Humeston, Floyd's brother, were facing a bright future in a job at a Columbus night club. The future, however, took a dim turn when officials turned up an ordinance prohibiting the lion's appearance.

The big cat first came to Columbus from California to join the Mills Brothers Circus. However, Earl and the lion parted company with the circus Sunday with no explanation being given.

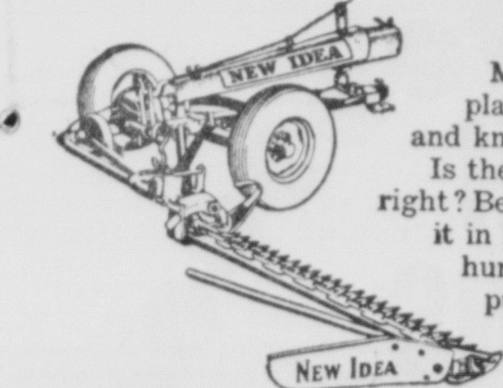

As a temporary measure, Humeston has arranged to have Fearless board at the Columbus Zoo. The chow line there, however, will be a little longer.

Humeston has been unsuccessful in finding new bookings for the big cat show and as he says:

"I'm stuck. I'd look funny hitchhiking down the road leading a lion, 2,000 miles from home and flat broke."

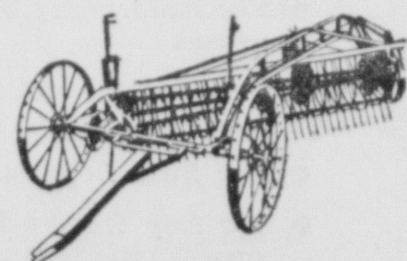

The share or horned lark is the only true lark.

NO INTEREST IN BARGAINS

WHEN World War II ended the government owned great stocks of supplies which had been purchased by the military for war purposes. In the belief there would be no more war, no thought was given to conserving these stockpiles.

Many items were disposed of at prices far below their real cost and value. Great stocks fell into the hands of speculators.
Enormous quantities were permitted to rust out and become worthless. War surplus jobbers became numerous, and later formed an organization for mutual beneffit.

These jobbers arranged an exhibit of their wares in Kansas City, making it convenient for the government to learn of their stocks and determine what could be used in the preparedness program. Apparently the government isn't interested, because no official buyers have shown up to as much as take a gander at the inventories.

Many of the articles in the hands of the jobbers are brand new, and can be purchased for a fraction of the price the government is paying manufacturers for identical items.

These supplies were purchased from the old War Assets Administration, at prices much less than their real value. It would seem that here is an opportunity for the government to save some real money on the cost of preparedness. The government may have valid reasons for passing up these bargains, but they are not readily apparent to taxpayers.

BEAR BY THE TAIL

MUCH has been written about the unhealthiness of the business boom in America. Vermont Royster of the Wall Street Journal has some penetrating thoughts about it. He says the boom back in the twenties was based upon the expectation of making money. The boom today seems to be based upon a fearful forecast of inflation
to come. The dollar is descending in value and people are buying to protect its present worth, knowing that tomorrow they cannot do so.

"Any 'prosperity' which stems not from current demands but from anticipation is,
of course, precarious because it depends upon what may not happen," says Royster.
"But a boom based on the expectation of bad news is not only shaky but also malignant."

The stimulating urge of today that "tomorrow will be worse" can't go on forever. But the politicians absolutely refuse to deflate a little of their own accord. They have a bear by the tail and want no part of deflation, figuring it will defeat them at the polls.

These Days

My Dear Senator Kefauver!

I read and hear that it is your intention
not to continue with the Kefauver committee even if the Senate decides to go on probing into organized crime in this country.

That would be most unfortunate.

The people of this country do not want you to quit. Nor do they want Rudolph Halley to quit as counsel.

Your committee has captured the imagination of the American people. In spite of what such men as Costello, Carroll and Kleinman and their lawyers say about television and radio, it is the right of all Americans to attend open hearings of congressional committees, and these modern devices serve the excellent purpose of making that possible.

What difference can there be in the theory of congressional committees whether the open hearing is in a small room where only 100 can see and hear or on television
where the whole people can see and hear?
Are the people to be excluded from open sessions of Congress because television has invaded that body to show the President delivering an address on the State of the Union?

If your committee were to hold its hearings in secret, you would be accused of star chamber proceedings. You hold them in the open and you are being accused of presented these witnesses to the entire nation.

I can well understand that you are weary of meeting with the kind of people who you have to interrogate. It must be pretty nasty work. Your compensation, and that holds for your colleagues and your staff,
must be that you are uncovering a criminal empire that has grown up in our country. The danger of this dual government surely is evident to anyone who understands our structure of freedom. It becomes offensive when we see the faces of the racketeers and read of the volume of wealth they have accumulated.

Your work is not completed. The people of this country want it to be carried further. If a vote were taken, you would find that they want it carried forward by the present committee and by its present staff.
After the failure of the Tydings committee,
your committee and your counsel have restored confidence in the processes of congressional committees.

Do not disappoint us by quitting now. Go on! This is important work.

May I suggest this to you?

Lawyers seem to be privileged persons.
They are permitted to keep secret the relations between lawyer and client. They may advise their clients in your presence
not to answer questions you or your counsel ask, and they are in no manner responsible for the advice they give. Only the client goes to jail.

However, is a lawyer permitted to advise
his client to subvert the United States?

CHAPTER TWENTY-EIGHT

WITHIN ten minutes the taproom was filled with men from the Black Rock settlement, their women with them.

Quint stood among his murmuring neighbors, stunned, unbeliev-
ing. Only a week ago a trader, stopping at the tavern, had said a peaceable settlement of the troubles with England was in the making.

Inside the door stood a small group of men from Buffalo village
who had marched behind the drummers as far as the tavern. One said, "It was Potter sent the drummers out. He's calling for volunteers, taking enlistments this morning. Guess he'll be taking 'em the night through. The militia's called and there're regulars on the way,
too. Know what happened today?
That loaded salt schooner that's been lyin' off the Buffalo shore waitin' for a fair wind—right under our noses, so to speak, two boats came out from Canada, took her and towed her back—grew 'nd all Alton's Commencement it was.
What we waitin' for when American property's seized like that?
Though seems I remember hearin'
you've kin who've gone across—mebbe your sympathies aren't
with us!"

"What my kin choose to do is their business, not mine or yours," Quint answered coolly.

If it was volunteers Potter
wanted—the younger men began to pile out of the door, to go to Buffalo and sign up, late as it was.
Others, in graver mood, left for their homes, the women with them.
Jennet and Becky slipped out to the kitchen.

Quint went out into the night,
to the river's edge. Just below him was the Rock, the ferry boat moored early in its shelter. It was almost full moon, and the water of the river reflected a wide-moving flood of silver. Lights twinkled in the houses along the opposite shore. Neighbors. Anger shook Quint, a sickness with it.
"It can't happen!" And knowing as he groaned that it had.

"Uncle Quint!" Jennet came up to him. "I knew you'd be out here!" She slipped her hand under his maimed arm, drew closer to

him. "It might have been our
brig they captured!"

"Yes, two months later, it well
could have been."

"But it wasn't! She's safe!" Her tone changed. "Uncle Quint, we know now why my father moved into Canada—he must have known that war was likely to come. Richard knew, too. That is why it was so important for him to get across by eleven o'clock. And think—what if I'd gone with him!"

Quint recalled Richard's words to Sir Kenneth. "... come back for her—if you can!" Yes, Richard had known. Alec, always Tory-minded, at the smallest possibility of war, would take steps to establish himself on the English side.
It explained his plans to marry
Jennet to that Englishman...

"It might have been better if you'd gone with your brother, married Sir Kenneth—we don't know what's ahead for us here."

Jennet threw back her head.
"Whatever happens couldn't be worse than going back to my father! And as to marrying that fop, never."

She stopped because she was remembering the way Peter Brant had put his forehead against her hands.

In spite of his sober mood, Quint laughed. "The poor fellow! He was so satisfied that he was bowling you over! But I must second your opinion of him, and now we'd best go in. There's no need of losing good sleep."

They found Becky waiting for Jennet in the kitchen. "Can I bed with you tonight?" she begged of Jennet and she looked so frightened that Jennet consented.

Quint, left to himself, sought Rhoda in the parlor but she was not there. He went to their bedchamber. The door was closed;
he put an unhesitating hand on the latch. But the door was bolted on the inside.

Early the next morning, two of the ferry crew brought the story of the all-night stir in the Buffalo village. Close to a hundred men had volunteered. Some officers from the regular army were there with Potter. A regiment of regulars was coming, the militia was out. The Buffalo taverns had been crowded full the night long.

Guarding the Mother Against Exhaustion in Childbirth

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

GIVING birth to a baby is work.
This may account for the term
"labor," used for so long to identify the process. At any rate, it requires hard and prolonged effort on the part of the mother, which makes necessary special measures to spare her strength and to guard against exhaustion.

The average duration of labor has been reported as slightly over 13 hours in white women having their first infant, and in about eight hours in the white women who have had babies previously.

Normally, a person loses about two quarts of fluid from the body
during each 24-hour period. During labor, when all bodily activities are speeded up, the amount of fluid loss far exceeds this amount, and it is often difficult to restore these fluids at this time
by mouth. It may even be dangerous to do so. Restlessness, pain, relieving drugs or anesthesia may all increase the chances of vomiting, with the danger that some of the vomited material may be drawn into the lungs. Thus, it may be better during labor to administer the fluids by injection
into a vein, using for this purpose either salt solutions, or sugar solutions, such as glucose.

Strenuous Effort

It must be remembered, too,
that with the strenuous effort of labor, there is need for an intake of "fuel." In part, this may be accomplished by giving frequent,

small servings of sugared fruit
juices, sugared tea, or clear broth
during the early hours. However, most of the energy needs may be supplied by giving the glucose solution injections.

Frequent emptying of the bladder during labor is necessary from the standpoint of preventing infections of the bladder following childbirth.

Relieve Pain

Various pain-relieving drugs are used during labor. However,
these drugs not only relieve pain,
but also depress the activity of various tissues, such as the breathing organs, the sweat and salivary glands, and the activity of the stomach and bowel. It is thought that some of these undesirable effects may be lessened by administering oxygen through a face mask from time to time during labor. Oxygen not only has a quieting effect on the mother but often causes the heart action of the infant to become regular and to remain so.

Of course, the temperature,
pulse, and blood pressure of every woman in labor are taken and recorded every four hours, should any abnormal signs occur, prompt treatment is administered.

Mrs. Elmer Hise, 3225 2nd

good mother, and like all good mothers she keeps a careful watch for the welfare of her two young children. And when little four-year-old Lucille Hise wasn't feeling
knew she should she decided to do something about it. Mrs. Hise gave Lucille HADACOL because she had heard how much it was helping children who had poor appetites and stomach distress caused by deficiencies of Vitamins B1, B2, Iron and Niacin.
It helped her so much that now Mrs. Hise gives HADACOL to both of her children.

Here is what Mrs. Hise says:
"My daughter has taken two bottles of HADACOL and she has been eating more than before and also sleeps better. I think HADACOL is the best thing for children who do not have an appetite. My daughter is four years old. Before taking HADACOL my daughter complained of her stomach hurting her, and I got her a bottle of HADACOL and she says her stomach doesn't bother her any more. I think HADACOL is wonderful. I am also giving HADACOL to my three-year-old daughter."

HADACOL Is So Effective
An important thing about HADACOL is that you get Vitamins B1, B2, Niacin and Iron in liquid form, which means that they are quickly absorbed and dispatched to the blood stream, ready to go right to work. HAD-ACOL helps build up the hemoglobin content of the blood
(when Iron is needed) to carry these precious Vitamins and Minerals to every part of your body.

My New York
By MEL HEIMER

NEW YORK—The talk we had the other day with Ginger Rogers, during which she brought up the subject of her first movie-making, out on Long Island during the period when she was working on Broadway in Girl Crazy, set us to thinking about the picture business in New York in general.
Manhattan is not so far removed from Hollywood as it would seem at first, when you study
the history of the cinema in relation to our little island fortress here.

More thorough researchers than us may show that the first movies of all were made here in New York; this is a point on which we are in the dark.
However, it is true that a great many of the early epics were filmed here, and the reputations of a great many silent-picture stars were founded on movies they made here, in such places as the American Biograph company's old brownstone-mansion studio in East 14th street.

It was at American Bio, for example, that a sweet young thing named Gladys turned up one summer day looking for a job acting. She got it, and the first movie she made was something called The Violin Maker of Cremona.

Miss Smith made a few more epics here, and then went out to Hollywood, where she raked in the coin of the realm in staggering amounts for years—before taxes. Somebody changed her name from Smith to Pickford and somebody else named her "America's Sweetheart," and history was made.

Mack Sennett, the old master, Maurice Costello, Mabel Normand, James Kirkwood and others built up their reputations with films made in New York. D. W. Griffith, one-time actor and writer, moved into the Biograph studios on 14th street and promptly began to bring the new medium out of its lairs-for-morons class.

Griffith invented the close-in, the fade-out and the close-up and he was the first director to tell a complete story on the screen. He directed the country's first film masterpiece, The Birth of a Nation, although it must be admitted the kindest thing that can be said of this one is: don't see it again, at a revival, if you treasure your memory of it.

ARTISTICALLY, THE REAL GOLDEN AGE of New York movie-making came early in the Thirties, when Ben Hecht and Charles MacArthur, flushed with theatrical success after the presentation of their newspaper play to end them all, The Front Page, started turning out adult films out in Astoria, L. I.

At a time when Hollywood was still toying with such dillies as
Our Dancing Daughters and a general product fit for 6-year-olds, Hecht and MacArthur turned out several minor classics that compared favorably with the dramatic tours de force being filmed on the continent.

Noel Coward's great respect for their talents influenced him to break a self-imposed rule and make a movie for them. It was The Scoundrel, which, although it played just one week at Radio City Music Hall, is one of the milestones of the film industry and has been revived a hundred times since it was first released. Coward went from that brilliant fantasy right back into movie retirement until World War II came along and jarred him into making another gem,
In Which We Serve.

Crime Without Passion, starring Claude Rains and Margo, was another Hecht-MacArthur product in Astoria, but gradually they folded up their movie business and it was not until several years ago that the city once again became popular with the cinema people.

Mark Hellinger's The Naked City, and a half-dozen other films—
The House on 92nd Street, Kiss of Death, The Sleeping City—were shot here, over the grumbling of the undersigned, who complained bitterly that they were disrupting the calm, even tenor of city life.

INCIDENTALLY, THE FIRST MOVIE SHOW ever presented in a New York theater was held April 20, 1896, at Koster and Bial's Music Hall, 34th street and Broadway. A notions store named Macy's stands there now.

The Edison Vitasec was used, and the first scene flashed on screen was called Surf at Dover—at the sight of which, first nighters raced screaming up the aisles, to escape the wild waves which surely were going to wash over the first few rows.

Hollywood came into being a couple of years before World War I,
and from then on, New York gradually lost its reputation as the film center of the world. However, now we have television and the roller derby. Both of them provide about as much entertainment as those early silent—so let us sit patiently by and watch their development.

Bennett Cerf's

Try, Stop Me

Willard Price's "Roving South
from Rio Grande to Patagonia" contains an episode that features Ezio Pinza, the man who single-handedly raised the average age
of matinee idols by fifteen years.
Pinza was staying in Rio when an impresario from Manaus, a city on the edge of the Amazon jungle made him an unusual offer. He wanted Pinza to come there for a single concert, for which he was willing to pay double the customary fee, cash
in advance.

When the baritone arrived at the Manaus airport, he was driven a considerable distance
in a sleek limousine, then led from the car direct to a darkened stage. "We are ready for your performance," said the impresario. Pinza couldn't see his audience, but had a feeling it was large, and pulling for him.
He sang as well as ever he had
in his lifetime.

At the conclusion of the concert, he was led again through the darkness to his car, and driven to a hotel in Manaus. It was in the lobby there that Pinza learned for the first time that he had sung to one of the largest leper colonies in the Western hemisphere.

Cinderella's Kitchen
Is Changed By Magic At Finale Of Cooking School

Packed House
Attends Show

Cinderella (Betty Newton) in a patched burlap dress crept on to the stage in Memorial Hall Thursday night and swept the ashes from around the old-fashioned brick fireplace.

But her fairy godmother (Miss Enid Parrett) appeared wearing a sparkling blue flame dress and waving a magic wand that in a flash transformed the dreary room into the modern kitchen that makes cooking a joy instead of a drudgery.

Miss Parrett, food specialist and lecturer with the institute, and Mrs. Shirley Burns —Betty Newton—who assisted in all the demonstrations reappeared before the audience that was packed into the hall wearing very modern brown dotted swiss frocks with white collars and cuffs and white organdy aprons.

Miss Parrett began the evening's school session by taking from the oven a surprising amount of food including two large peanut pies, two loaves of fruit bread, two vegetable casseroles, a large pan of oven fried chicken and a dish of baked tomatoes stuffed with savory spinach.

Fred Barthelmas, manager of the institute and amateur chef, challenged Miss Parrett to make an emergency meal out of cans —"Like for instance you have company drop in and have to get 'em something to eat real quick."

Miss Parrett proved him wrong by producing in 15 minutes a complete meal of spaghetti deluxe, a casserole of brocoli, a casserole of spaghetti with spiced ham and a speedy peach cobbler.

Miss Parrett also made English muffins, baked on top the range which inspired Barthelmas to appear wearing a monocle and affecting an English accent in hopes of being allowed to taste one of the muffins.

He was permitted to demonstrate his "relations meal" which was a complete meal cooked in one large kettle. He said, "I always cook in this when my relations come to visit."

Taking tongs and a spoon from his hip pocket, Barthelmas removed from the pot a beef roast, potatoes, onions, carrots, old fashioned blueberry pudding and three yards of string beans all tied together.

He explained, "They're string beans. I spent all day stringing 'em."

Another trick of Barthelmas' was wrapping a pint of ice cream in a bat of insulation such as that used in the modern ranges and putting it in the oven for thirty minutes along with a cherry wishing ring made by Miss Parrett.

When the time was up both were removed from the oven and the ice-cream, still solid, was placed in the hollow center of the cherry pastry.

One of the most beautiful foods shown was the starlight gelatin dessert which Miss Parrett had made previously and stored in the refrigerator. It was topped with a red raspberry sauce.

While Miss Parrett was frying orange doughnuts which she dropped by spoonfuls into the deep fat, Betty Newton made two pans of cookies from a refrigerator dough. Using one basic recipe she made four different kinds of cookies by adding nuts, chocolate or dates and coloring the dough.

After frying the doughnuts Miss Parrett made eggs benedict adding a Hollandaise sauce that the average housewife seldom attempts as it is difficult to make. But her Hollandaise was as smooth as could be desired.

Miss Parrett also made many other dishes including the glass slipper salad which was a three layer loaf of contrasting color, prince charming party sandwiches and wienie-witches which should be a favorite snack of the high-school set.

The school was ended as were the other sessions with the parade of foods in review all in special settings and dishes which are carried by the institute to display the foods in an artistic and appetizing setting.

Miss Parrett closed the institute with the fairy Godmother's words, "Flame so clean, flame so blue means much less work for you and you and you."

Dan McClain, manager of the Ohio Fuel Gas Company office here, introduced other Betty Newtons from Logan and Chillicothe who worked behind the scene to make the institute such an outstanding success.

McClain also introduced the merchants who participated in the cooking school by supplying the ranges used.

Many gifts were presented 24 men and women who were present. Linda Kay Sharpe again assisted McClain and Barthelmas in the presentations.

THE WORLD'S GREATEST COOKBOOKS
SPONSORED BY THIS NEWSPAPER

There are so many women who consider meal planning the hardest part of cooking that they are sure to snatch at this week's cookbook release entitled "Menus for Every Day of the Year." This is the final title in the Culinary Arts Institute series of twenty-four cookbooks now available to readers of The Circleville Herald.

"Menus" plans meals by seasons, as after all, food availability must be considered as well as the fact that tastes change according to weather. There are breakfast, lunch, and dinner menus as well as menus for holidays and special occasions.

Luscious photographic illustrations give further inspiration to the homemaker as she reads through this lively volume. And to make matters completely simple, each menu is cross-indexed so that you can quickly refer to the proper cookbook in the series for any recipe you need.

Everyone runs short of ideas now and then for what to serve to keep the family's meal interesting running high.

This week's cookbook release, "Menus for Every Day of the Year," is certainly the answer to that problem. It is also the last title in the Culinary Arts Institute Series of twenty-four cookbooks available to readers of The Circleville Herald.

This fascinating cookbook plans dinners, lunches, breakfasts, parties, and special breakfasts—whatever you might need, and they are planned by months, so that you can start with the current month and work right through the book. To make matters still easier, opposite each dish in the menu is a key number representing the number of the cookbook in the series where the necessary recipe will be found.

To get this valuable finale to the cookbook series or for any titles that you may have missed in the series, just present 15 cents for each to your independent grocery in Circleville.

Editors' Roundtable

"Editors' Roundtable" is a twice-a-week release based on a study of an average of about 150 daily newspaper editorial pages. The major issue of the day is analyzed and digested, passed on to readers as a survey of opinion from the nation's leading editors. It is the "voice of the press."

AMBASSADOR O'DWYER
Pending full investigation, editors reserve conclusions of opinion on whether Ambassador William O'Dwyer committed perjury before the Kefauver Committee in denying receipt of a $10,000 "campaign contribution" or "gift."

A minority of editors feels that the truth in this matter should be the test of O'Dwyer's fitness to continue as ambassador to Mexico. But majority opinion is that, aside from the issue of perjury, O'Dwyer's admitted political associations with racketeers, even if only as a "practical politician," disqualify him to represent the country as an ambassador.

DENVER Post (Ind.): "Ambassador O'Dwyer's continued presence in Mexico City is no less than an insult to our southern friends. . . . There is grave question about some of the former mayor's testimony regarding his connections with organized crime in New York. A firemen's association official said he had given $10,000 to O'Dwyer's campaign fund. . . . Mr. O'Dwyer denied it all, so now there will be income tax and perjury investigations. . . . The fact that he is suspected is enough to make him the wrong person to represent us abroad."

DALLAS Morning News (Ind.-Dem.): "Although O'Dwyer's previous training. . . does not particularly qualify him as an Ambassador, neither is he disqualified by the mere charge that he has lied under oath, that he has accepted money which he has denied receiving. . . . So the Ambassador's disqualification to resign under fire is natural and human. But Mr. O'Dwyer's embarrassment is also that of his country. If the allegations are true, the disqualification is clear. . . . The important thing. . . is, then, to move to establish the truth. . . ."

MEMPHIS Commercial Appeal (Ind.): "Eventually a grand jury, trying to find out what became of $135,000 of the firemen's funds, may be able to eliminate whatever is the present element of doubt. . . . It is axiomatic in American justice that a man is regarded as innocent until proved guilty, but even if it develops that it is O'Dwyer. . . . who is telling the truth about the $10,000, his usefulness in the diplomatic field is ended. . . . American diplomatic Recruiting Sgt. Clarence Longberry Jr., of Monroe Township, said Evans had served a two-year hitch with the Army prior to his recent enlistment.

Longberry, recruiter for both Army and Airforce, said there is a need for men with previous experience in the service. He said that ex-airmen enlisting from this area can expect to be assigned to duty in Wright-Patterson Field near Dayton.

Separate Mental Health, Social Welfare Departments Are Sought

COLUMBUS, March 30—A bill to split Ohio's sprawling welfare department and create separate departments of mental health and corrections and of social welfare is awaiting senate action today.

The measure was introduced by Sen. Ralph Winter (R-Lodi) who proposed also to set up three advisory councils of five members to consult with the two new directors.

Each of the directors of the two new state departments would be of cabinet status, just as the present welfare director is, and would receive the same salary—$8,500 a year.

Two of the advisory councils would be assigned to the department of mental health and corrections to aid in drafting policy for the state's mental and penal

General Public Allowed To See Rocket Firing

ALAMOGORDO, N. M., March 30—An Airforce test rocket, to develop protection for U.S. citizens against bacteriological and atomic warfare, has been fired for the first time in public.

The Aerobee-type missile was fired at the firing range of Holoman Airforce Base and it zoomed rapidly to a 61-mile altitude. At the maximum altitude, the rocket exploded 100 pounds of common table salt for visual and spectroscopic study.

Airforce scientists theorize that free salt is carried aloft by wind currents and then is disarranged into sodium particles by the sun's energy. Common table

Old Milwaukee Can Float Battle Fleets Of World

MILWAUKEE, March 30—This is the town that you-know-what made famous. Natives say it is the finest of places in which to greet the vernal equinox and celebrate the rites of Spring.

Not for nothing is Milwaukee known as the beer capital of the nation and the home of the floating kidney.

This proud community really does make sufficient beer during a twelve-month period to float all the battle fleets of the world, with enough left over at high tide to accommodate the Queen Mary, the Queen Elizabeth and the Staten Island ferries.

Or, to put it another way, if Milwaukee breweries could pipe their output into the Dead Sea, that stout bowl would be jumpin'.

This Wisconsin metropolis has the happy habit of turning visiting firemen over to the beer boys for official entertainment and hospitality unlimited.

Each of the big four breweries, Blatz, Miller, Pabst, and Schlitz (named in alphabetical order by a cautious reporter), maintain on the site of their respective brewing establishments suites of rooms in which to entertain thirsty tourists.

THESE SUITES vary in comfort and appointments from the petit Trianon at Versailles to the Taj Mahal, with the single exception that the Milwaukee quarters are bigger, and the beer better. No place do visiting firemen have it so good as in Milwaukee.

The Schlitz party parlors, a rathskeller with ritz class, apologizes through its major domo, Maurice Bloesch, for the paucity of the viands.

13-Year Oil Supply On Hand

WASHINGTON, March 30—America has a 13-year supply of oil on hand.

Bruce K. Brown, deputy head of the Petroleum Administration for Defense, told this to a congressional subcommittee in testimony released today.

Brown said we had just as big a supply on hand 20 years ago. All this in spite of the fact the United States uses seven million barrels of petroleum a day.

SURVEY IS DETAILED

American Farmer Worth Total Of $91 Billion

MINNEAPOLIS, March 30—American farmers now own $91 billion worth of land, buildings, live stock and equipment. This gigantic food "factory" turned out approximately $30 billion worth of produce in 1950, or a third of the value of the "plant" itself.

In 1900 and even in 1910, American agriculture produced only a sixth of its own physical value in a year. Even in prosperous 1929 it produced a little less than one-fourth of its "plant" value, according to a study by the family economics bureau of the Northwestern National Life Insurance company.

Though America's farm population has shrunk from 32 million persons to 28 million in less than half-a-century, this 12 percent smaller force now produces twice as much food and other products as in 1900; has boosted its output per man hour by 35 percent since 1940, says the study.

The American farmer has accomplished these gains through gressional subcommittee in testimony released today.

a 900 percent increase in his investment in tools and machinery since 1910, and by use of better methods, better seed, better livestock, and more fertilizer, the report states.

THE AVERAGE U. S. farm is a third bigger today, comprising 195 acres of land, as against an average of 146 acres in 1900 and 145 acres in 1925. Annual net income per farm was only $350 in 1900; was $960 in 1925, and amounted to an estimated $2,225 in 1950, the study says.

The statistical "average farmer" in 1950 was 49 years old. His 195 acres of land with their buildings were worth $10,000. He owned $2,200 worth of implements, machinery and motor vehicles. His live stock and poultry were worth $2,100—a total "plant" value of $14,300.

In addition he had $1,200 worth of crops in storage, and held about $3,100 in cash, bank deposits and U. S. savings bonds; he also owned $350 worth of stock in his local co-operative.

Against these assets was a mortgage now paid down to $850—only 6½ percent of the value of his land and buildings (his mortgage amounted to 20 percent of land and building value before the war; he also owed his bank, the CCC and his local merchants a total of about $1,100, leaving him a net worth of $17,000.

He sold $4,350 worth of produce in 1950, on which he netted $2,225. He and his family also used about $350 worth of their own farm produce during the year.

This totalled $4,700 worth of output from land, buildings, live

U.S. Hotel Chain In Europe Planned

CHICAGO, March 30—Plans to extend a major American hotel chain across Europe—through the financial aid of the Economic Cooperation Administration—have been announced at the American Hotel Association meeting, which concludes today in Chicago.

Conrad N. Hilton, president of the Hilton Hotels Corporation, told the three-day conference yesterday that two of the hotels will be built in Rome and Istanbul. ECA will put up part of the $50,000,000 cost.

Americans own some 65,000,000 radios.

Class A State Finals Opening In Columbus Gym

COLUMBUS, March 30 — Two Class A high school basketball teams will emerge from tournament competition here today to play in a championship twin bill tomorrow opposite Class B finalists Grand Rapids and Waynesburg.

Favored Hamilton (25-1) battled Canton McKinley (17-7) in the Class A opener this afternoon before a record audience.

The game was televised by Columbus, Dayton and Cincinnati and aired on ten radio stations.

The evening semifinal windup features Columbus East (24-2) and Barborton (23-1). The winners of both games will clash for the coveted Class A crown tomorrow night in Columbus' Fairgrounds Coliseum.

Waynesburg, which remained unbeaten while topping Ashley 47-42 last night, and Grand Rapids, 50-44 victors yesterday afternoon over Lockland Wayne, are paired in tomorrow's other championship game. Both teams are out to win their first Class B title.

TOMORROW'S Class B finale should prove interesting from a

Phog Allen Raps College Aid To Top Athletes

NEW YORK, March 30—Kansas University Basketball Coach Dr. Forrest "Phog" Allen is in favor of appointing a national commissioner of all collegiate sports, at a $100,000 a year salary.

Allen insists that until such a commissioner is appointed "we will never put a ceiling on aid to athletes."

The fiery Kansas coach is in New York to coach the Western All-Stars in their annual game with the East in Madison Square Garden Saturday night.

Allen made some bold charges yesterday. He said: "I was told that Bobby Reynolds (Nebraska halfback) was offered $10,000 and a Cadillac to go to some other school. He didn't go. That raises the question of what he gets at Nebraska. A national commissioner could check on such things."

In Lincoln, Athletic Director George Clark said Reynolds received a Big Seven Conference approved tuition grant-in-aid. Clark said this year it will amount to $160.

Allen also called on college presidents to surrender the power they have because "they have done little with it." He said rules are being obeyed like they were in Prohibition times.

The Kansas coach maintained the Midwest "hasn't got the mess you have in New York. You will uncover some in Los Angeles. That's a cesspool out there."

Royals Discover Lakers Have Two High-Score Men

NEW YORK, March 30—The Rochester Royals, who are playing the Minneapolis Lakers in a best three out of five series in the western division of the National Basketball Association, do not subscribe to the theory that the Lakers have a one-man team in the person of George Mikan.

In the opening game of the series in Minneapolis last night, the peerless center scored 19 points before a sore ankle forced him to the bench. But Vern Mikkelsen, who replaced Mikan, proved to be even more potent poison for the Royals. All he did was to tally 25 points and spark the Lakers to a 76 to 73 win.

The next game in the series will be played in Minneapolis tomorrow night. The winner of the series will qualify as the western division playoff champ to meet the survivor of the Syracuse-New York series in the eastern division.

Syracuse tied up the series at one victory apiece by trouncing the Knickerbockers 102 to 80 in Syracuse last night. Dolph Schayes of the home team was high scorer with 21 points.

The New York Knickerbockers were off their game and Syracuse led at the end of each period.

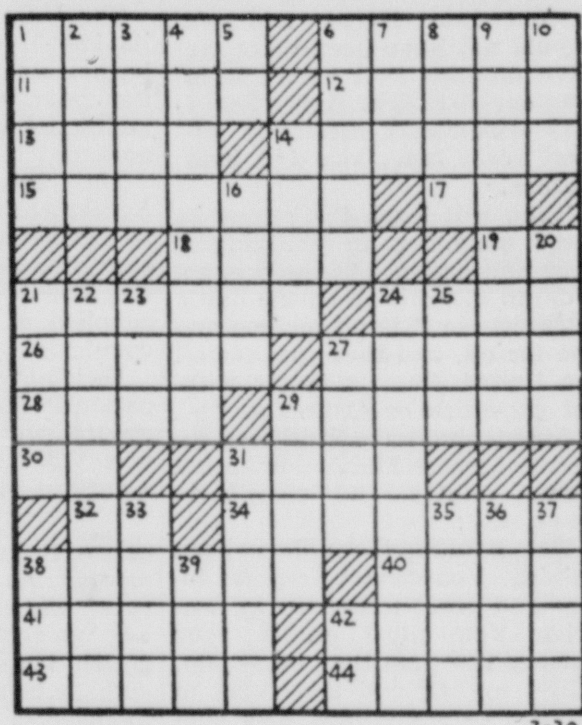

Cy Young At 34 Still In Top Form

DOVER, March 30—Cy Young, one of baseball's retired greats, was hitting on all cylinders yesterday as he celebrated his 34th birthday.

Young, whose real monicker is Denton True Young and who is touted as one of the greatest major league hurlers of all times, was presented an automobile at a banquet in his honor attended by 700 fans, players and Tuscarawas Countians.

CZAR NEEDED FOR SPORT

Basketball Catches Self With Listing Of Arrests

NEW YORK, March 30—Basketball as she is played today really caught up with itself for keeps when, latest arrests brought into the clutches of the law New York City College's entire national championship team of last year.

Three were arrested when the fixing scandal first broke, then one more was added and the roundup was completed late Tuesday with the arrest of three more, making it seven from one school and a total of 16—all a material witness— all told involved in the mess.

City College won both the National Invitation and the NCAA Tournaments last season to be dubbed the Cinderella Kids. They came from nowhere to win the big double. The Cinderella Kids were underdogs in both tournaments and barely got in at all.

Evidence in the situation seems to indicate that they were very good all the time, but, after monkeying around all season, turned square for the big event and played their real game.

ACCORDING TO THE district attorney, some of the players were approached to do some skulduggery in the tournament games, but they turned it down. There is a moral here somewhere, if you can find it.

In any case, some of our best people now are doing business with the DA's office and the Kefauver committee.

Perhaps the time has come when sports should get either an over-all czar or such a sport as basketball should get one of its own. As in baseball, the com-

Letter To The Editor

The Cincinnati Herald encourages letters to the editor on pertinent subjects of local interest. However, unsigned letters will be disregarded. Non de plume will be used if requested.

Editor, The Herald:
I am inquiring about the honorable mention list on this year's All-County (basketball) team. I have heard a lot of comments from boys all over the county about this being highly unfair to the boys who should be on this list.

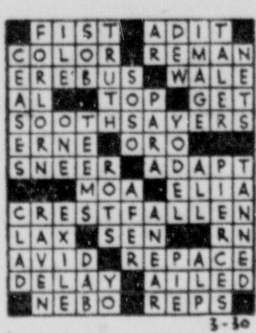

I personally think, by all means, it should be printed in the paper, along with the first ten as soon as possible. It would fit properly with the "most valuable player" award from Circleville.

If this information could not be found, it should be dug up and by all means printed. These comments were heard at the all-county choir, band and orchestra practice today at school.

I would be pleased to see this list come out in The Herald as soon as possible. Many others would, also. I would highly appreciate it if this could be done.

Selections for all-county team honors are made solely by the 11 Pickaway County basketball coaches. Each nominates the 10 players he considers outstanding. The results reveal the cream of the basketball crop in the county. The 10 most outstanding players named actually make up about 10 percent of the total players in action during the season.—Editor.

Orient Farmer One Of Five In State To Win Dairy Award

Recognition Given For Efficiency

Winner Chosen By OSU Experts

A Pickaway County farmer was one of five Ohio Dairy Herd Improvement Association members among those recently awarded prizes in recognition of their superior achievement in efficient dairy production.

Ray Carpenter of near Orient was chosen for a farmer award from among nominations received from all sections of Ohio.

Other farm winners included Harry Rowland of Lorain County, John Schlenker of Auglaize County, Victor Ruff of Fairfield County and Z. C. Kline of Marion County.

Carpenter operates a 200-acre farm and is a strong advocate of grassland farming practices, having learned first-hand of their advantages.

His hay crop is a mixture of alfalfa and Sudan grass and he makes good use of grass silage put up each Summer from his fields.

CARPENTER EXPLAINED how he had increased his Guernsey dairy herd efficiency through his grassland farming practices, use of proven bulls and other improved farm practices.

He also told the importance of records as well as the procedure of culling his herd from the information he was able to get from the records.

Carpenter is active in community affairs and has two sons and two daughters, all active in 4-H Club work. He is a member of the local school board, local 4-H Club adviser, helped start the countywide Guernsey 4-H Club and is a member of the County Extension Advisory Committee.

The awards are presented annually by National Dairy Products Corp. in cooperation with the Northern and Central Ohio Breeders Association who also award medals and cash to Dairy Herd Improvement Association testers.

All winners were chosen by the college of agriculture of Ohio State university. According to R. R. Starbuck, OSU extension dairy husbandman, award winners were chosen primarily for their efficient production, through improved methods such as breeding methods, grassland farming, conservation practices, care given the animals and dairy records.

Train Racing Made Illegal

ALBANY, N. Y., March 30—It has always been dangerous for a motorist to dash across railroad tracks ahead of an approaching train. Now it's going to be illegal too in New York state.

Gov. Thomas E. Dewey signed a bill making it unlawful to drive through grade crossings when the gates are lowered or when a flagman's red signal has been hoisted.

Those who get across can be arrested. Those who don't will find the problem academic.

Census Bureau Releases Data Concerning Ohio

WASHINGTON, March 30 — A preliminary Ohio census report shows a greater percentage of the people were married in 1950 than in 1940.

As of last April 1, Ohio had gained 15 percent in population in the previous 10 years, but 67 percent of the residents were married, compared with only 61 percent in 1941.

The census bureau said Ohio's population last April 1 was 7,947,000, or a gain of 1,039,388 over 1940, and 4,061,000 were married.

There were more children, too—42 percent more under 10 years of age—because of the higher birth rate and lower infant mortality rate in recent years.

The report showed all but six percent of the married couples had their own living quarters—about the same proportion as in 1940.

The population was split about 50-50 between men and women, but there were more women working or looking for jobs than there were 10 years ago.

The bureau said 857,000, or 28 percent of the women 14 years old and over were in the labor market compared with only 23 percent at the time of the last census.

Ohio's total labor force—including those working, unemployed and in the armed forces—was set at 3,206,000. Ten years ago it was only 2,765,687.

Draft Evasion Trail Scheduled

COLUMBUS, March 30 — The defense will present its case today in federal court for the first time to be tried for draft evasion in Columbus since World War II.

A jury of five women and seven men is expected to return a verdict in the trial of Loy V. Imboden, 25, of near Logan late this afternoon.

Imboden is accused of refusing to take the oath under the Selective Service Act and report for induction at Fort Hayes last September 8.

The government rested its case late yesterday.

Truman Military Adviser Evaluates War In Korea

NEW YORK, March 30—"To my mind, the issue is joined and joined right out in the open. It is a showdown between Communism and the rest of the world."

This was Maj. Gen. Frank E. Lowe speaking—the Frank Lowe who has been called President Truman's "leg man" in Japan and Korea.

He had just returned to Tokyo from a trip to the Korean battlefield, where he sought out the U. S. Marines and the famed First Cavalry Division as the surest means of finding the spots where the fighting was hottest.

Lowe is a veteran of three wars and a reserve officer for 30-odd years. Known as a keen political analyst as well as a fine soldier, he was asked to bluntly give his own slant on the whole Communist picture in the Far East.

"The decision is not of our making," he said, "but the issue is joined right out here and it is out here that it must be settled first, and with no procrastination or appeasement."

"You cannot reason with our enemy nor can you deal with him in words."

"Unfortunately, armed force is the only language he comprehends and respects. First things should come first. The Far East is of first importance to us and it would be tragic for us now to lose the 'face' that we have attained throughout the Far East by reason of World War II and by reason of this United Nations war."

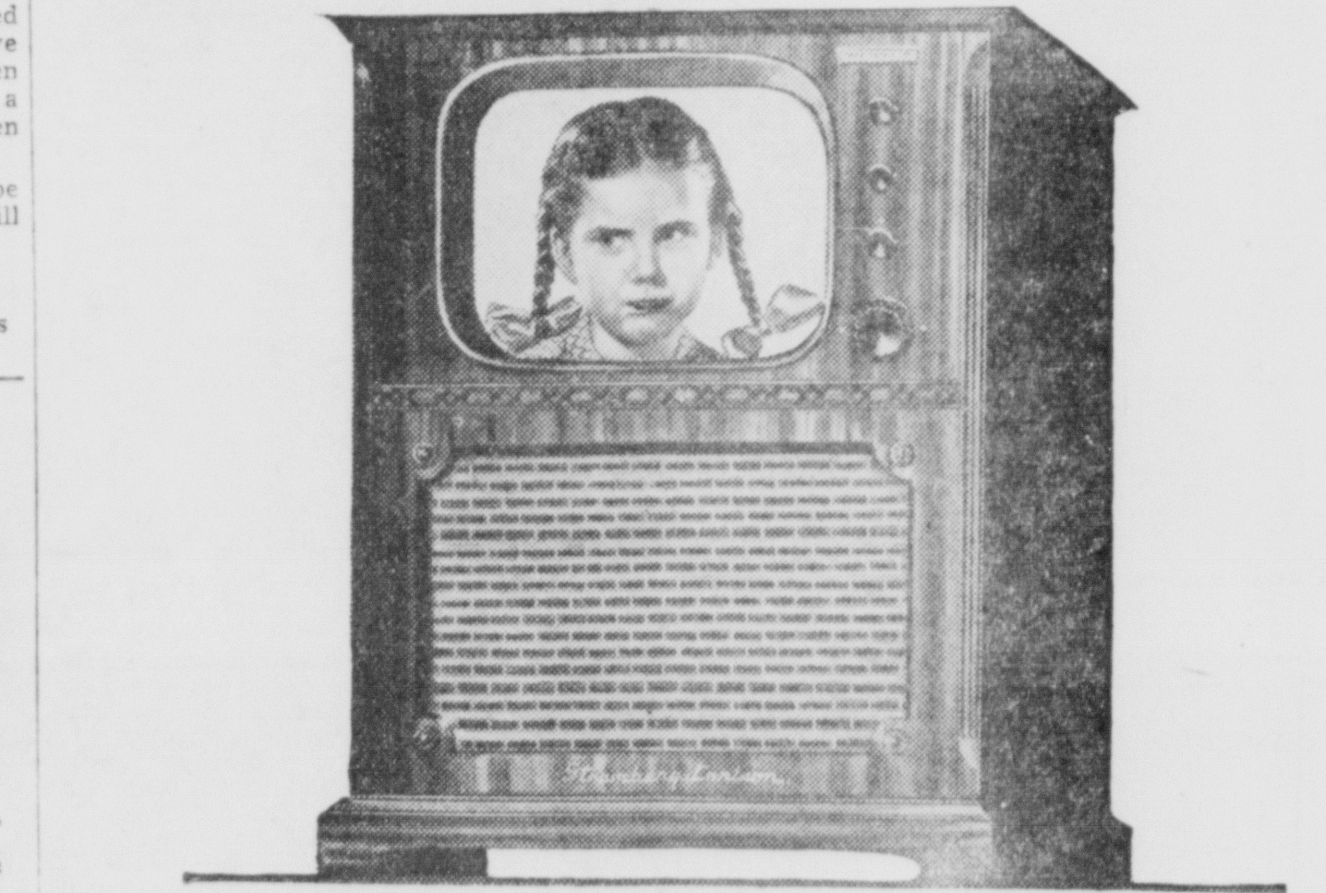

"BELIEVE ME, this enemy has learned that it is not well to arouse the wrath of Americans, nor to sell our country short. We could have told them this long ago, but they have had to learn it the hard way. It is up to us to

"withdrawal" are nowhere mentioned. Lowe was asked about other divisions — the famed "First Cav," for example, and the Air Force.

"They are all good; in fact they're superior, every damned one of them," he said. "Otherwise we would not be here, and the same goes for our Navy and our Air Force."

"Why, we would not have gotten into Korea and we would not have been there for five minutes if it hadn't been for our Air Force. And when I say Air Force, I mean air effort from land, sea and land forces."

"You will learn there may be some quibbling in Washington over unification, but there is not a damn bit of it up on the battle lines, where it is all for one and one for all, and that goes for all the United Nations forces without exception or distinction."

Asked about the criticism directed against MacArthur in the United States and elsewhere, Lowe said:

"Of course there has been sniping. You cannot be great today and great tomorrow in America. You must make your choice. The man they persecute, vilify, malign and undertake to murder — sometimes with suc-

Ag Department Halts Subsidies On Wheat Exports

WASHINGTON, March 30 — The Agriculture Department has halted subsidies on wheat exports under the International Wheat Agreement.

The U. S. late yesterday filled its 1950-51 quota of 248,164,000 bushels under the agreement for the year ending Aug. 1. Any additional wheat going abroad now may be sold at any price.

The International Wheat Agreement has two objectives—to assure markets for wheat to exporting countries at equitable and stable prices, and assure supplies of wheat to importing countries.

Officials say that U. S. participation in the agreement tends to strengthen market prices for wheat domestically. The agreement has two more years to run, each wheat year beginning Aug. 1. Officials estimate that 65 percent of the world's wheat crop will be traded this year under the agreement. That amounts to a little more than 16 million tons.
